The notice convening the meeting having been read, The Chairman said that, as the report and accounts had been before the Shareholders for some time past, he presumed they would permit him to take them as read. Their steamers were at present in an efficient state, and they would all shortcontingencies and repairs would be fully met by the amount now carried forward to new working account. The Kiukiang and Spark had extensive repairs done to them some twenty months ago. Powan, considering the offeet for which she was built, had acquitted herself very preditably indeed on both the Macao and Canton waters, and had justified the oxbense incurred by her a short time ago. The White Cloud had entailed a moderate expenditure on the resources of the Company, and she is now cut of dock. The Kinshan had just been laid up, but from the estimate of their Superintending Engineer, they might safely rely that the outlay on her would not be more than $12,000. Considering the keen competition they had to contend with on both lines, and keeping in view the extraordinary expenses they which appeared in the present accounts, they would doubtless look upon the result of last half-year's operations as highly followingsatisfactory. They were aware of the misadventure experienced in connection with a certain recent enactment of the Legislature of this Colony; he was, however, glad to be able to inform them that the matter was under the consideration of the Governor, and they could only hope that His Excellency, with his usual kindness, would deem it right to remit the fine, of course retaining a nominal sum for the unintentional breach of the Ordinance. The Company continued to enjoy the support of the major part of the community, and they hoped always to do so in the future. H would be glad to answer any questions put to him. (No one responding), the Chairman proposed that the report and accounts be adopted.

The Chairman thanked those present for their attendance, and intimated that the dividend would be payable from and after

HONGKONG HOTEL COMPANY, LIMITED. The Ordinary Meeting of Shareholders was held at the Hongkong Hotel at 4 o'clock this afternoon. There were present Messrs Belilios (in the chair), Reiners, Grobien, Pereira, Dittmer, Polishwalla, Mardfeldt, Landstein, H. Cohen, Vaucher, Jorey, Cox, Hoppius, Ethè, and G. Sharp.

The notice convening the meeting having been read, the Chairman said :- Gentlemen -Our report and accounts for the half year having been published, you have doubtless perused them and will allow me to take them as read. You will observe that we have followed the old routing we have adopted of paying off a portion of our loan and declaring a small dividend to the shareholders This course we intend to adopt until the amount standing on the wrong side of our books shall have been liquidated. Directors sitting at this Board after this has been done may then deem it fit to make you a larger return on your investment. Some alarming rumours have been circulating in this Colony, concerning the state of this building, and it is my duty to refute them. I am glad to be able to say that this is one of the best constructed buildings in the Colony, and that it is in a most efficient condition at this moment. estimated cost of a thorough overheal of the building, including all superfluous repairs, will not exceed from $2,000 to $3,000 (applause). It is gratifying to me to be able to say that we have participated in the enhancement of landed property in this Colony and that we have received an offer of $170,000 for the Hotel from one individual. Premises of this description and these dimensions are not easily marketable, but when they do become so and we are offered a sum equivalent to all your shares, it will better suit a company to keep them. other words, if one individual was prethe property, the value at which it At Macao, on the 25th January, Anna stands in our books is not excessive; and to do, gentlemen; and I shall be happy to

Mr Vaucher thon asked if the Chairman could say that any better offers had been made for the lease of premises than they had vet been receiving. Mr Landstein said he did not think the Directors would be justified in giving information on this head, but said that they were sanguine of getting much better offers. The Chairman quite concurred with Mr Mr G. Sharp then proposed a vote thanks to the Chairman, and the meeting

I think we exact from Mr Stewart more than any one man, no matter how accomplished and able he may be, can perform in asking him to be not only the Inspector of our Schools, but also to retain the post of Head-master in this School. (Applause.) I believe that if Mr Stewart were to take the position of Inspector of Schools, maintaining of course in that position a proper supervision over this school, he would be able to give to the whole educational machinery of the Colony even still more attention than he is at present able to bestow upon it. It does not do for us, if we happen to have a good officer, to overwork him, and with the growth, the steady but great growth, of this school the work of Mr Stewart must have grown in proportion, and the time has come when I think I may fairly consider whether or not some change might not be made of the nature I have indicated. Of course you are aware that whatever change I might think it necessary to make, it will be my duty to report to Her Majesty's Government, but knowing what the services of Mr Stewart have been here, I do believe the Secretary of State would favourably entertain any recommendation in that direction made by the Governor of this Colony. (Applause). Perhaps I may take this opportunity for are present on a subject which at one time attracted a great deal of my attention, and which, close as we are to China, is not an inappropriate subject in addressing an audience such as this. You are all aware that the Government of the great empire close to us relies for obtaining its official element upon a system of open competitive examinations, established now in China for many centuries, and you are also aware that some of the countries in Europe, I will not say following the example of China, but certainly treading in her footsteps, have also established a system of open competition for appointments in their civil service. Now one of my predecessors, many years ago, in writing to the Secretary of State, expressed the opinion that the Government of China was able to conduct the administration of that vast empire, -that great empire stretching down from Peking to Canton,were able to conduct that Government from Peking mainly through this system of public examinations, and by relying on certain great moral principles, such as parental authority, which that Government at all times enforces. Not long since, when paying a flying visit to Canton, I was shown, by Archdeacon Gray, the examination halls in that city. As well as I remember he told me that at the last examination there were over 3,000 candidates in those examination halls, and that there were a few more than a hundred of those candidates who were to obtain degreesthat is to say, there were only a few more than a hundred degrees to be gained, The result was that during the two or three days the examination lasted the intellectual struggle between those 3,000 or 4,000 students was very great. The candidates who passed the examinations, those hundred students, had their names recorded and from time to time, as vacancies occurred in the public service of China, they obtained 'appointments; in that way way some of the most powerful mandaring in China have obtained the public offices they hold. Now the question occurred to me when I arrived in this Colony, would it be possible for me to do anything in that direction here, and perhaps you will excuse the last occasions that I appeared in public | me if I refer to a personal subject. Many years ago, in the House of Commons, I made a motion to call upon Lord Palmerston's Government to appoint a Committee to ascertain whether it was possible to throw complain to day that this spacious hall is open to public competition the whole of the half filled; indeed, on the contrary, the appointments in the Civil Service of Enghall in this school, where we assemble on land. We had a debate upon that subject; an occasion like this is not large enough to Lord Palmerston, no doubt a very wise contain, I may say, one half of the pupils in statesman, but, perhaps, on that occasion attendance at this school throughout the in the wrong, opposed my motion; the year. You are all aware, ladies and gentlemen. that the subject of education is not one upon which people in this Colony have been silent. For many years past it has been discussed in every shape and form, and, indeed, I think I was not many hours in the Colony-even before I went down to the Council Chamber to read Her Majesty's Commission-I was advised by the Intelligent organs of the press to announce what was call d my policy on the subject of education. Well, I had other things to do, and in addition to that I thought it well to pay some attention to the subject, to study it on the spot, before ventured to express any opinion. And what is my policy? Well, it is to promote education, and I may say in one word. shall be most happy during the five or six years that it may be my pleasure to be here, most happy to do all in my power to promote the success of this institution, the Central School. (Applause.) When visited here the other day and saw Mr Falconer and the other gentlemen going through the daily routine of their duties, I was struck by some incidents which it is well for us to bear in mind, because they auggest the possibility of improvements which I know Mr Stewart has at heart. visited one large class room, indeed, a sort of double class room on the other side of that passage. In that room I should think there were 130 or 150 Chinese youths being instructed by three Chinese teachers. Now I found that they were reading the Chinese Classics: I found that the three Chinese teachers who were instructing them in the Chinese Classics, had, themselves, no knowledge of the Eng. lish language; and of these 140, or 150 pupils I suppose I should be accurate in saying that not half speak English-Mr Stewart tells me that not one of them speaks English. Now those pupils, I was very glad to see, were reading the Chinese Classics by the aid of Chinese teachers. During the whole of the year we have had 610 pupils attending this school. I asked my friend, Mr S ewart, this morning how many of these were able to speak English, and he said about 50 or 60. Now these are facts of great interest for us to know. They point to that which I say Mr Stewart above all men desires. They point to the desirability of our endeavouring to keep the pupils who come to this school a little longer in the school. The system unfortunately is that, after learning perhaps what we might call only a smattering of knowledge, many of the pupile leave the school and go at once Into business houses. I believe Mr Stewart will be able to suggest to me means by which we may induce the pupils to devote a longer period to their school atudies-I do not mean a longer period each day, but a greater number of years. But he also suggests something else. With whom do these boys, that I now see before I then said I now repeat—that the going to, and the house which they were night before I was ascaulted. I think one of our principal duties as educationisis must be to increase the number of English aceaking and English writing Chinese inhabitants of Hongkong. I believe we will be able to do that not only by means of this valuable institution but also by the other educational agencies in this Colony. Now Mr Stewart has placed in my hands a list of the 148 pupils of this school who left the school during last year, and I find on glanclog through it that many of the pupils left the school to obtain really valuable employments in life. I find that the first pupil is now a master in this very school; another is a clerk in one of our leading mercantile houses, another employed in a piece goods shop, another has become a compradore, and will doubtless make an immense fortune-the compradores are not the poorest · blass in this Colony—another has become an assistant in his father's business, several have become clerks in the Chamber of Commerce and to various gentlemen of the Regina v. Charles Newman. The prisoner was indicted on one coun for assault occasioning actual bodily harm to Inspector W. F. Whitehead on the 23rd December last.

CORRESPONDENCE.

To the Editor of the "CHINA MAIL." Hongkong, 25th January, 1877. Sir,-In yesterday's newspapers, I observed a report of the decision of a naval court-martial, convened on board H. M. S. Victor Emmanuel, to try an Assistant Paymester for drunkenness and neglect of duty."

It is not often that such proceedings, in China waters, suggest any questions of public importance, but there are some salient points in this case, for the statement of which I venture to ask space in your columns.

The decision of the officers composing the Court seems singularly illustrative .of the truth of the proverbial saying that a Court-martial is one of the fairest of tribunals, but the circumstances, under which the accused was brought to trial, must be eminently unsatisfactory to every one who loves our navy and has at heart the honour of the white ensign.

The facts, as detailed in the evidence. seem to have been these :-- One evening the being drunk, and the first lieutenant and doctor expressed their concurrence in his opinion. Without taking any further steps to ascertain the unfortunate man's condition, the Captain placed him under errest, but released him next day. Nothing more was heard of the matter for nearly six formed that a court-martial had been apnot remember how much I sold the things for. but in the meantime the ship was paid off. her commission having expired, and the Captain gave the prisoner a certificate of service, in which it was stated that he had been addicted to drinking for a period of over three years. At the trial, the first lieutenant and doctor testified on oath to their belief that the prisoner was drunk on the evening stated in the charge, the evidence of the doctor being especially strong and circumstantial. The case against the but, fortunately for him, an officer, from another vessel, happened to have been visiting the ship at the time of the alleged offence, and his evidence awakened, in the minds of the members of the Court, a very grave doubt of the accuracy of the observation of the witnesses for the prosecution, who it now appeared had not been on speaking terms with the prisoner for some time.

> I should be sorry to suggest that, on the part of the Captain and his witnesses, there was any desire to do injustice, but it. must surely afford matter for the most serious consideration, that the conditions of the service, on board our smaller ships, are such that, owing to petty disagreement or more serious quarrel with his messmates, a diligent and efficient officer may at any moment be sacrificed. The position of a paymaster especially is a most peculiar one. and, in the course of his performance of duty, it is easy to imagine that difficulties may arise, which could easily be avoided by some re-arrangement of responsibility. Of course no one would suspect a gallant officer of wilfully misstating facts, but when conclusions from most insufficient data.

With regard to the statement in the certificate given to the accused on the ship's sitting on the Commission, and had learnt being paid off, I only remark that it is either true or untrue. If the former, the rules of the service must have been ignored if the latter, a lasting injury has been cruel-Mr Havllar said this was a serious charge | Iv done to an uneffending man.

I know nothing whatever about the parties interested in the case, and draw attention to it, solely on public grounds. Yours,
